LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28 — If predictions as surprise and are known in heaven, the late Pulitzer experiences when I see this news on the other board:

"New York World, morning, Evening and Sunday, has been sold. Mr. Pulitzer believed impossible to prevent in his will has come to pass.

"Power that once dominated politics is sold because it had no heir and could not be made to support newspapers for years. Pulitzer left millions, won rich, and it is hard to keep in spite of wealth.

THE EMPRESS OF JAPAN is expecting the arrival of one more little Japanese to be added to the world's 90 million subjects, and nothing is more important than birth to those 90 million.

Mikado, Hirohito, has three daughters, no son—and only a son can succeed in Japan.

If a son is born, he will be hailed as direct descendant of the sun goddess and will be when his father dies the 125th Mikado in a straight line.

That ancestry makes every other family lineage seem trivial. Voltaire said that the oldest title of nobility in Europe descended from some Venetian nobleman. And Venice, founded by malefactors fleeing from the mainland, is young compared to the Mikado's line. Although only 30 years to each of the imperial Japanese generations, the 125 Mikados would go back 3,750 years, back of Rome, Greece, Jerusalem, everything that we call civilization."

YESTERDAY in the South Carolina state prison six Negroes were sentenced to death for killing two white men.

When awakened at 4 o'clock in the morning, all had slept soundly. Lack of imagination, which makes murder possible, also brings good sleep. Four had been baptized in honor of the occasion and the first to the electric chair. The death marches lasted two hours.

Whether, in this universe of vastness and relativity, have those six lives been gone? Are they again living soundly or enduring tortures that will never end?

THE VARSITY, newspaper published by the students of Toronto university, says undergraduates are "practical atheists." Toronto is not excited. The excitement is unnecessary.

Students are, mentally speaking, half baked products, attaching unnecessary importance to what they would describe as their own ideas. Francis Bacon covered the case of the young student atheist in few words:

"A little philosophy inclineth man's mind to atheism, but depth in philosophy bringeth men's minds about to religion."

SWIFT PASSAGE of the bonus over the President's veto emphasizes the fact that in union there is strength, and should interest workers and others.

Apart from the merit of the case, and the desirability of giving money to men entitled to it, observe that the organizations of veterans working together did what any number of men, no matter how deserving, could not have accomplished working separately.

There were veterans on the steps of the Capitol, in the galleries, thousands upon thousands writing and telegraphing to congressmen. No doubt was left in

BRITAIN, ITALY IN AGREEMENT ON NAVY PACT

Five-Power Limitation Treaty Expected To Result from Action.

NEEDS FRENCH APPROVAL

Will Be Submitted to Briand Tomorrow; Acceptance Forecast.

By The Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 28—Great Britain and Italy today reached an accord in principle for the settlement of all naval problems left pending by the London conference of last year.

The accord will be submitted to the French foreign minister Aristide Briand, in Paris tomorrow, and if he accepts it a five power treaty carrying limitation of all categories of naval tonnage will emerge. Inasmuch as Foreign Minister Arthur Henderson of Great Britain had already reached an agreement in principle with the French before initiating the conversations here M. Briand's acceptance of the British-Italian accord was expected almost as a matter of course.

Henderson Optimistic

Mr. Henderson himself was so hopeful that he said a complete solution of the differences between France and Italy would be reached in Paris "if the talks there are as satisfactory as they have been here."

He left for Paris with A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty and British admiralty experts, two hours after the negotiations had been finished and hopes tomorrow afternoon to obtain full agreement with the French. When that is accomplished the text of the new accord will be submitted to the governments of the United States, Japan and the British dominions signatory to the tripartite treaty of London for their final approval and the elaboration of a five power limitation document.

The London naval treaty, signed last April, prescribes limitation and reduction of naval armaments for the United States, Great Britain and Japan, and agreement on some phases of the naval disarmament problem among those three nations, France and Italy.

Provisions of Present Pact

The first three signatories are parties to the limitation and reduction agreement. France and Italy signed only those sections relating to "humanization" of submarines, a capital ship holiday and certain other technical phases. Dec. 31, 1936, is set as the terminating date of the treaty.

Italy declined to join a five-power pact unless France recognized the principle of Italian parity with her navy. France declined to meet this condition, which meant French inferiority in the Mediterranean, since France is obliged to keep ships in colonial service, an obligation which does not rest upon Italy. It is understood that the parity controversy is in effect postponed until 1936 when the entire naval treaty comes up for review.

SCHOOL BOARDS IN ANNUAL MEET HERE

Supt. C. B. Rayburn Analyzes Costs of Office; Answers Tax Group Charges.

The county school superintendent's office, its purpose, work and an analytical view at the cost of its operation was the central theme of the morning session of the annual meeting of rural boards of education at the Central Junior high school today.

Explaining the work accomplished by the superintendent's office, County Superintendent C. B. Rayburn in a talk this morning substantially answered many attacks which have been made on his office by various tax reduction groups in the last few months. The talk, however, was not an open reply to these charges but was given to better acquaint the board members with the office.

George M. Morris, supervisor of rural schools in Ohio, was scheduled to appear on the afternoon program of the meeting with a general discussion of education. He will answer any question the members may raise. A number of unsigned written questions were submitted for discussion before the meeting.

It was said that all hope of a settlement of the differences between the congress and the government over the status of India had been virtually abandoned by the congress party tonight.

Cleveland Honors Veteran Fire Chief, Retiring at 82

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 28—Still expecting to die "in the harness," the country's oldest active fire chief will retire from his office in this city tomorrow night.

George Alexander Wallace, the retiring veteran has been in the department for 62 years. At 82 this dean of fire chiefs retires from duty but will live at a firehouse the rest of his life and will respond to alarms whenever he chooses.

An engraved gold badge making Wallace chief emeritus will be presented to him at a banquet tonight while dignitaries of the city honor him.

All over the city "Wallace day" placards and banners proclaimed the occasion. A parade of firemen was planned with Mike and George, veteran fire horses from Lorain, O., at its head. Only a few weeks ago Mike and George were also retired.

It has been 30 years to the day since Wallace was made chief. Thousands of flames he since has battled. Time after time he has been cut, gassed and burned.

Repeatedly the grizzled chief has been a hero. Two years ago he was badly gassed when 123 persons were asphyxiated in the Cleveland clinic disaster, but wouldn't take medical treatment until doctors practically forced him.

SEE CAPONE'S POWER AT END

Jail Sentence Sign of Coming Fall from Throne, Say Officials.

BUT AL SHOWS FIGHT

Pins Hope on Circuit Court Appeal; Out Under $5,000 Bond.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28—A beginning of the end of the grip of power in Chicago of "Scarface Al Capone, the internationally notorious gangster chief, was seen today by federal officials, they said, in the six months' jail sentence imposed upon him in federal court.

Toppled suddenly from his throne of apparent immunity by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who found him guilty of contempt of court for failing to respond to a grand jury summons in 1929, Capone was pictured by government officers as losing ground because his reputation for immunity from punishment in the "Windy City" appeared to be broken.

In Fighting Mood

But Capone was in a fighting mood today, with his hope pinned in a 30-day stay of execution and an appeal to the circuit court of appeals. Meanwhile he was free under a $5,000 bond.

Having failed to convince Judge Wilkerson that he was too ill to come up from Florida in the winter of 1929 to appear before the grand jury which was investigating incomes, Capone, long known as the "big fellow" of the gangster business, faced not only the fight on the appeal, but an appearance in criminal court next Wednesday for vagrancy.

Sentencing of Capone—an unprecedented action in Chicago—was but one of many developments in gangland circles yesterday. Tony "Mopes" Volpe, Capone lieutenant, was ordered deported to Italy.

Brothers Trial Delayed

Almost simultaneously Judge Joseph Sabath announced the trial of Leo. V. Brothers of St. Louis, accused of slaying Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter and friend of Capone, would be postponed next Tuesday to make way for the trial of William "Three-Finger White's second trial for the murder of a policeman.

ARREST BOYD AND OTHERS

Windows Used by Many of Guests in Making Escape.

By The Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 28—William H. Boyd, 45, stage and film actor, was charged with possession of gambling paraphernalia and liquor after a police raid which broke up a party at his home early today. Walter L. Catlett, 42, and Pat O'Brien, 31, were arrested on intoxication charges.

WILLIAM BOYD

Men and women in evening dress, many of them said by officers to be players, fled through doors and windows as six policemen under Lieut. James Johnson burst in upon what they described as a "well equipped gambling room and richly furnished bar."

Police said roulette wheels and dice tables and "more than a gallon" of liquor was seized.

Boyd formerly played on the New York stage but has appeared in several motion pictures in the last two years. One of his most recent film parts was in "The Spoilers," a talkie version of the Rex Beach novel.

He and his wife, Dora Boyd, New York actress, were divorced recently.

Mrs. Boyd was known to the stage as Clara Joel. Catlett and O'Brien, arrested with Boyd, are film actors.

Police said they had seized a home motion picture projection machine and films of nude subjects, and had added a charge against Boyd of possessing obscene pictures. They quoted him as saying he was entertaining guests following the completion of a motion picture.

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 28—Sheriff Joe Zimmerman and his purchasing agent, Deputy Clarence L. Honberger, today were under indictments charging fraud in the buying of food for the county jail.

LOVE, REVENGE CLASH IN TRIAL

Conflicting Emotions Cause Intense Interest in Youth's Murder Hearing.

CRIME INVOLVES FIVE

Family of Victim Insist on Supreme Penalty in Atonement for Slaying.

By The Associated Press.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Feb. 28—Love and vengeance stood on the sidelines here today as the trial of Virgil Kirkland, Gary athlete on trial here for the murder of Arlene Fraser, his schoolmate continued.

The love is that of Kirkland's mother, who daily sits among the front row spectators, her eyes always on the back of her accused 20-year-old son, scarcely an arm's length away at the defense counsel table.

Ask Death Penalty

Vengeance rides with the silent grim faced father and the sisters and brothers of the 18-year-old girl. The father even though he has made his peace with Kirkland's father sits with the prosecutors, suggesting now and then, points to ask witnesses. The sisters and the brothers of the dead girl sit just outside the court railing, near the seat of Mrs. Kirkland. But they, unlike his mother, declare nothing but death in the electric chair can atone for the tragic and untimely death of Arlene.

With introduction of testimony of Dr. James B. Burcham, coroner's physician yesterday, the state virtually completed the mesh of evidence designed to convince the jury of Kirkland's guilt.

Crime Involves Five

Kirkland is the first of five young Gary men to be tried. All are alleged to have despoiled the girl during a liquor party in Gary, Ind., last fall. There remains yet Judge Crumpacker's decision on the admissibility of an alleged confession which Kirkland is reputed to have made involving himself, David Thompson, host on that fatal occasion, Paul Barton, Leon Stanford and Henry Shirk. Thompson and Shirk are married.

The Kirkland case came to the high, grim-walled 50-year-old Porter county circuit court room on a change of venue. The interest is intense.

Meaning of the Word "Funeral"

BY THE SCHAFFNER-QUEEN CO.

The word "funeral" has a peculiar derivation. It comes from the Latin "funerails"—through funis, a torch—and, strictly speaking, means a torchlight procession.

At once, we have a picture of what the Roman funeral was: a night-time demonstration involving a procession and lighted flambeaux.

The special use of lights has continued even to this day, even though funerals are now held in the daytime. Every thoroughly equipped funeral director provides all the lighting appointments that may possibly be desired.

It is in just such little extra services as this, that the progressive funeral director demonstrates his resourcefulness in meeting the demands of his clients. His funeral establishment holds every facility for the proper conduct of the funeral—no matter what the creed or the individual desires of the bereaved.

LOCAL WOOLWORTH STORE IS REOPENED

Crowd Throngs Room To Inspect New Store and Fittings.

The local store of the F. W. Woolworth Co., was reopened for business today. Several thousand persons visited and inspected the store yesterday afternoon and last night when the store was open for inspection only. First merchandise was sold this morning.

The store closed Nov. 25 after a $100,000 fire had partially destroyed the McNeal-Wolford building in which the store is located. The first floor of the building was recently completed permitting the store to resume business.

Music and distribution of favors featured the opening yesterday. The store was filled with persons from 2 to 5 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m., according to F. M. Sage, manager.

Fifty sales girls were busy this morning waiting on the hundreds of persons who packed the store. Managers from Woolworth stores in surrounding cities were here to assist Sage in the opening.

The interior of the store was completely remodeled. New counters and an entire new stock of merchandise were recently moved into the store. New ceiling and wall treatment and new style lights are among the improvements made in the store.

Meantime, workmen are pushing work on the second and third floors of the building toward completion. At least another month will be required to finish the work.

It was indicated that the expense of the improvements according to the present architectural plans will run approximately $15,000 more than the amount of the bond issue.

HARDING LOSES LAST GAME TO GALION

Kirkpatrick Rallies in Last Period To Win County Cage Championship

THIRD PERIOD RALLY FUTILE AS LOCALS ARE BEATEN 28 TO 19

Presidents Complete N. C. O. League Season in Next to Last Post.

BY GILSON WRIGHT

A SENSATIONAL third-quarter spurt failed to win for Harding high school's basketball team on its last scheduled game of the season last night at Galion, the latter team taking the contest by a 28 to 19 count.

The victory gave Galion a tie with Ashland for the N. C. O. championship since Ashland, the erstwhile leader, was downed by Shelby 27 to 26.

The Presidents played last night without the services of Jack Ling regular center, who has been ill this week with influenza. He was not in uniform for the contest. Bob Smith filled in the gap at center with a neat performance. He accounted for seven points, five on free throws, and held Hoekstra, Galion's high-scoring pivot man, to only four points. The absence of Ling, however, was felt keenly since his scoring ability was badly in need last night.

Morgan Tops Scorers

Morgan ran away with scoring honors with four field goals and two free throws for 10 points. Three of his goals came in quick succession in the third period, the only time the local quintet outplayed Galion.

Harding might have won had it not became frantic in the final period. With the score standing 21 to 19 in Galion's favor, the Presidents made a desperate effort to stop Galion's stalling game, only to permit Burnison to slip under their basket for two easy "sucker" shots. Stout made one of the same variety, and these six points put the game on ice for the winners.

Galion took the lead at the outset and was never headed. Burnison scored first on a free throw on Clay's foul and Goldsmith came through with another one-pointer on Vestal's foul. Burnison sank a field goal and Galion was out in front with a comfortable 4 to 0 lead. Morgan then sank two free throws on Goldsmith's foul, and Davis shot a free throw for Galion to make the count 5 to 2 as the quarter ended.

In the second quarter Galion increased its lead to 12 to 5 on field goals by Davis, Goldsmith and Stout, and Goldsmith's free throw. Harding's scores in this period came on Morgan's dribble-in shot and Smith's free throw.

The third period brought first one crowd to its feet and then the other, for both teams shot sensationally. Campbell made a free throw and Hoekstra cashed in with three points when he was fouled while making a basket. He shot the extra point.

With the score 16 to 5 in Galion's favor, Morgan put Marion back in the running with a shot from the corner, another from the center of the floor and a third from the TONIGHT will afford what is expected to be the final opportunity to witness the Shovel Y-Indus basketball club in action on a local court this season. Incidentally the game is likely to be one of the best played on the Shovel court this year. The Cleveland Gears and Forgings will oppose the Y-Indus.

The game the thirty-third of the current season, is the last on the home schedule of the Y-Indus club. Several more contests are on the books for the local champions but all of them are on foreign floors.

Not since the passing several years ago of the well-known Isaly Dairy and Marion Steam Shovel teams has Marion been represented by a cage organization that can even compare with the Y-Indus outfit. This notwithstanding some unwarranted claims advanced intermittently by other local organizations.

Inasmuch as the Isaly and Shovel teams competed for the most part in the ranks of professional basketball the Y-Indus can probably fairly claim the all time amateur championship of Marion and the vicinity. Furthermore the record would be likely to stand for some time even were the Y-Indus to discontinue competition after this year. This is not being contemplated at present by the club.

Since its organization here three years ago the Y-Indus has steadily advanced from an obscure position to the head of the local basketball column. Some of the best teams in the state have been played and few indeed have been those which did not have a difficult battle before subduing the locals. On only one occasion in more than 70 games has the Y-Indus been beaten by a margin of more than 10 points. This was in the first year of competition.

Last Saturday a large crowd of spectators paid admissions to the Shovel gym to watch the Y-Indus play the Cincinnati Wildcats. The Y-Indus lost 38-37 in an overtime battle that had spectators on their feet countless times throughout the game. Even though the Marion team lost there was nothing but praise for the excellent showing of the blue-clad locals.

The game tonight should be just as bitterly fought although Cleveland is reputed to have a team that ranks with the best in the northern Ohio city. They may beat the Y-Indus. It is probable they will. But they will know they have been in a hard game and basketball fans will do themselves a good turn if they turn out to see the contest.

A case of "poison ivy" kept "Light Horse" Harry Cooper from playing in the $10,000 Los Angeles open this year. The golf pro won the event in 1926.

The University of Florida has scheduled 21 baseball games for the season, with two additional games with Boston Braves and Newark Bears still pending.

MORRAL LOSES BATTLE FOR CROWN 21-19; CALEDONIA WINS SECOND POST

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

UNCORKING a furious final period rally that swept the hitherto undefeated Morral basketeers off their feet Kirkpatrick High school won the championship of the Marion county cage league last night by a 21 to 19 score. The game was one of three played on the floor of The Star auditorium.

Caledonia High school also flashed a brilliant attack in second half to down Pleasant Township for the runner-up position 26 to 15. In the third game of the triple program Waldo gained a one basket decision over Prospect the final score standing 30 to 28.

As the results of the games last night Kirkpatrick, Morral and Caledonia will represent Marion county in the district Class B tournament at Westerville on March 7 and 8.

Morral Takes Lead

Morral, winner of the West half championship of the county opened the game against Kirkpatrick in a manner that threatened to leave the East half team far behind before the game was completed. Noyes and Newland combined to run a 6-0 count before Kirkpatrick found the hoop for a single rally. Clary and Hart then went on a scoring spree that brought the count to within reaching distance of the Morral outfit.

Morral again stepped into a commanding lead in the second period running the count to 16-6 by half time.

Kirkpatrick apparently was all set for a first class beating in the third period as Morral dribbled and passed its way through the defenses of the scarlet-clad team for repeated scores. However with the count standing at 19-11 Kirkpatrick suddenly loosened an inspired attack that bewildered Morral and brought the score to 19-17 by the end of the frame.

Hart, brilliant forward of the Kirkpatrick team clinched the victory for the East half team in the last period when he hit the net for a pair of baskets to run the score to 21-19. Heller, star Morral forward, left the game on four personals late in the game, a fact that did nothing to aid the cause of Morral.

Hart of Kirkpatrick and Newland, Morral center starred in the championship battle. Hart was all that kept Kirkpatrick in the running, his brilliant work outshining that of any other man on the floor.

It took Caledonia the entire first half to get its usual efficient offense functioning against the Pleasant township cagers but when it finally got going the Barnhart-coached team could accomplish little. The score at the half way point was 11-9 for Pleasant but in the third period Caledonia rapidly widened the gap, leading the game 18-12 at the end of the stanza.

Baird and Biggerstaff directed a barrage of shots at the basket in the final frame that netted Caledonia several more points and put them further ahead of the Pleasant township team.

Wait Leads Winners

Wait was easily the outstanding player on the floor in the Pleasant-Caledonia fracas. He was all over the floor the entire game, passing with unusual accuracy and doing a lot to disorganize the offense of the Pleasant township team.

Waldo and Prospect played the first game of the triple bill, putting on a fast and interesting struggle although nothing in the way of a championship was at stake.

Waldo started out slowly, allowing Prospect to gain a big advantage by the end of the first period. Gerfen, Waldo guard, dumped in three successive baskets in the first part of the second period to gain a lead for Waldo that Prospect was never able to overcome.

Carls of Waldo and Keller of Prospect turned in the best performances of this fray. Canklin and Gerfen also played above par for Waldo.

HONORARY TEAMS APPEAR MONDAY

At the close of each basketball season for the last several years it has been the custom of The Star to choose an all-county team of both the boys' and girls' divisions. An effort is made to name players to the honorary teams which have been most valuable to their teams, in all departments of the game.

The 1931 edition of the mythical cage outfit for Marion county will appear on the sports page of The Star on Monday, March 2. Watch for it.

BASKETS and BANKBOARDS

BY "PHOG" ALLEN

This is the last of a series of basketball articles by Forrest C. Allen, director of athletics at the University of Kansas. Into the argument over "commercialism" in amateur sports, Allen introduces an angle heretofore little discussed, that of the operation of the high school athletic association.

By The Associated Press

LAWRENCE, Kan.—With the passing into history of the University of Chicago (Stagg) National High School Basketball tournament an athletic landmark disappears.

In all of those years of fine tournament play only two or three boys ever enrolled at Chicago. Which is another way of saying that Amos Alonzo Stagg conducted that tournament for altruistic motives—namely, to give the boy with a competitive nature a chance to express himself.

The various state high school executive secretaries objected to the Chicago cage tournament on the grounds of commercialism and absences from classes for too long a period. It is all right to have the national track meet at the University of Chicago, but inadvisable to hold the national basketball tournament.

The basketball tournament paid the expenses of the national track meet.

WE hear much of over-emphasis of college athletics, but little of the same kind of talk regarding the high school phase of sport. The truth of the matter is that there is more commercial manifest in some high schools at present than in colleges.

The state high school athletic associations in many states are now asking for large guarantees from the small colleges, a guarantee much larger than the tournament ordinarily would draw if no high pressure bidding measures were indulged in.

The college then goes downtown to the chamber of commerce and asks the business men to guarantee the sum. In this way through competitive bidding the state high school association gets the money.

"Tex" Rickard long ago refused to guarantee to the boxers more than they could draw at the gate. If the high schools were to put on their own tournaments, in their own plants, the running expense would be borne by the high schools instead of by the colleges.

IT seems the educational viewpoint is being lost sight of by the state high school associations. By charging a fairly high membership fee and by allowing the colleges to pay tribute finapcially for holding tournaments in their own plants a handsome bank balance running into thousands of dollars is placed in the state high school association treasuries.

No definite objective is outlined for this rapidly accumulating fund so far as the public is advised. Either the tournament guarantee should be reduced or the annual membership fee of some of the financially weak high schools should be lowered.

The earnings of the university and college athletic associations go for play utilities for the students. This plan allows the gate receipts to build playgrounds and stadiums, but the earnings of the high school go to a state association fund and cannot give the immediate benefit possible if they were left to the individual high school members.

Is it possible to over-organize?

Men of sense sometimes make cents out of nonsense.

CLEVELAND FIVE TO PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Triple Program Booked for Shovel Gym; Y-Indus in Headliner Game.

Three games are scheduled tonight for the Steam Shovel gymnasium, the feature clash being between the Shovel Y-Indus and the Cleveland Gears and Forgings teams. The first game of the triple program will commence at 7 p. m. with the second called for 8 p. m. The Y-Indus-Cleveland battle is booked to start at 9 p. m.

The Cleveland-Y-Indus game is expected to be a hard-fought battle. The Machinists were winners of the Class B championship of Cleveland last season and are running high in the race for honors again this season.

No advance in prices will be made by the Y-Indus despite the triple attraction. The First Reformed Sunday school girls and the Marion Business College lassies will play the first game. The second will be between Waldo Lutherans and LaRue Athletics.

Petrolle Evens Score by Beating King Tut

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—One of the few really spectacular battles Madison Square garden has seen this indoor season was under investigation today by the New York State Athletic commission.

The boxing solons cocked a suspicious eye in the garden last night as Billy Petrolle floored his arch-rival, Henry Tuttle, otherwise King Tut, three times before knocking him out in the fourth round of their ten round return scrap. When it was all over, Commissioner John J. Phelan ordered the purses of both fighters held up pending an inquiry. Tut had knocked out Petrolle in 34 seconds of the first round in their recent meeting, at St. Paul.

EARLY BIRDS

Spectators Arrive Three and One-Half Hours Before Games Start.

When spectators want to see a basketball game bad enough to wait more than three hours for it to commence they must be interested. That is what happened yesterday preceding the start of the Marion county play-offs.

The first persons on hand for the trio of games took up their long vigil outside the doors of The Star auditorium at 4 p. m. When the doors opened there was a goodly number waiting for admission. Members of one family is reported to have brought their dinner with them in the family market basket. Nearly 1,000 persons packed the auditorium to see the games.

LATE BASKET WINS BATTLE FOR SHELBY

Whippets Cinch Third Place by Beating Ashland 27-26; Mansfield Victor.

GUS CULBERTSON ended the 1931 season on the basketball court last night in a blaze of glory by looping a two pointer in the last five seconds that not only cinched the game and third place for Shelby but forced Ashland to accept a tie for the championship of the N. C. O. league. Shelby won the game 27 to 26 by virtue of Culbertson's last minute basket.

Mansfield won "just another basketball game" from the lowly Bucyrus Redmen, trouncing the tail enders 27 to 15 in a one-sided contest on the Mansfield court. Bucyrus ends the season as the only team in the circuit failing to win a single game.

Shelby jumped into a comfortable lead over the Ashland Hilltoppers right at the start of their game, leading the Starmmen 8 to 2 by the end of the first period. Ashland's high class defensive machine got to working in the second period and put a damper on the scoring machine of the Whippets, holding them to two points while they were adding ten for themselves to make the count read 12-10 for Ashland at half-time.

Ashland continued to outplay Shelby in the third period running the score to 23-16 by the end of the frame.

Shelby put on a desperate rally in the final period that even Ashland's usual stalling tactics could not check. Culbertson aided matters a lot by tossing in several points for his team, climaxing his efforts by hitting the net for the winning basket with only five seconds to play.

Mansfield Wins

Bucyrus provided little more than average opposition for Mansfield. The Tygers took the lead at the start of the game and never lost it although Bucyrus attempted a rally in the second period of the game. Mansfield led at the half 15 to 9.

Brandon, Mansfield guard topped the scoring list of the game with a total of eight points. Smith, Tyger forward, trailed him closely with seven markers.

CENTRAL WINS

Avenges Previous Beating by Vernon Heights by 17-15 Score.

Central Junior High school basketeers avenged a previous beating last night by Vernon Heights Junior High defeating the suburban school 17 to 15. The game was played on the Y. M. C. A. court.

Both teams played on even terms during most of the game although Central clung to a slim advantage after the first period. Vernon put on a spirited rally in the last stanza that almost overtook the mid town team.

Johnnie Vestal turned in the best game for Vernon. Vernon missed numerous opportunities for points because of unsuccessful tries from the charity stripe. Ten attempted free throws were missed by the losers.

BUSTER KEATON IN COMEDY TO PLAY AT MARION NEXT WEEK

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" Opens Sunday for Three Days.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

THE laughs have it at the Marion with Buster Keaton's starring picture, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" playing for three days, commencing Sunday.

The cast is heavy with laugh-makers Charlotte Greenwood, Reginald Denny good for light comedy, and Cliff Edwards. Not including the lovely girls, Dorothy Christy, Joan Peers, Sally Eilers and Natalie Moorhead The lanky Charlotte is a newspaper woman.

The comedy was first produced 12 years ago in New York.

Fans who are curious to see what a famous movie star's home is like, have their chance in Keaton's picture. When the picture was planned, search was made for a handsome residence with great terraced gardens and swimming pool to be used for a "location." Keaton offered his Beverly Hills estate as a setting. The Keaton swimming pool, his gardens, "Elmer" his dog, and practically all the rooms inside the home were used as settings.

KAY JOHNSON TURNS BOOTLEGGER

This sounds interesting. Kay Johnson, the lovely blond of "Passion Flower," is a feminine bootlegger in "The Single Sin" at the Palace Sunday and Monday in conjunction with three acts of vaudeville.

The stage will be transformed into a skating rink for the Rexola Brothers act. Walsh and Reynolds title their act "We'd Better Sing" which means comedy, songs and dancing, but we may be wrong. A novely 13-minute act "Top Speed," will occupy the spotlight on the program.

Bert Lytell, one of the most consistent actors gracing any supporting cast has the featured role with Miss Johnson. Mathew Betz, an actor who has been doing small character roles for years, lands his name fourth from the top and we say "Bravo." He's pug-ugly but he's a good actor and what else is there to say.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN BACK IN TALKIES

This column is becoming one long oh and ah over the veteran actors making good in the talkies. But of all the grand surprises—

BUSTER KEATON

Francis X. Bushman who for many years held away as the handsomest man on the screen and the mention of whose name caused more hearts to flutter than Vallee, Gary Cooper or Colman, ever dreamed of he's back in a prominent role in "The Dude Wrangler," at the Ohio Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Oh, but he was handsome in the old Essanay and Vitagraph days, and his photographs today would make any young man think twice about introducing his best girl.

Lina Basquette, George Duryea and Clyde Cook have featured roles. "The Dude Wrangler" is the story of a "pansy" cowboy. Alice Davenport, Ethel Wales and Clyde Cook are the comedy relief Caroline Lockhart wrote the novel from which the picture was made.

Sojin, the tall, thin Japanese who can make anyone shudder when he raises a long, menacing blade and swings it over the head of a terror-stricken victim has a role in the picture. Sojin is one of the fascinating characters of the screen. Under his own name he has written several books and is a former student at the University of Waseda in Tokyo.

The Ohio offers a double bill, including a war picture, "Gold Chevrons," and the personal appearance of Private Clayton K Slack.

DETECTIVE WINS IN FIGHT TO CLEAN OUT COW THIEVES

"The Sunrise Trail" with Bob Steele Closes at Marion Tonight.

BOB STEELE is all wound up in a detective story of the wide open spaces in "The Sunrise Trail" closing at the Marion tonight. Blanche Mehaffey, Jack Clifford, Eddie Dunn and Fred Burns have leading roles.

Bob is a young man out on the hunt for cattle-rustlers. He falls in love with Mrs. Mehaffey, a fugitive from justice, and joins the gang he's after to get inside information on their goings-on. Everyone's dead but the sheriff, Miss Mehaffey and Bob. In the final close-up, and things look romantic for Bob and the girl.

The second part of "The Indians Are Coming" a new serial, a comedy and newsreel complete the program.

side, bringing the count to 16 to 11. Both teams then began to hit the bucket with deadly accuracy and the score was 21 to 18 when the third quarter was completed.

In the fourth period the Harding defense crumpled, permitting three "sucker" shots to be made without opposition.

The Harding Reserves lost in a preliminary to Galion's seconds, 25 to 13, while the Harding vocational team trimmed the Galion vocational quintet, 22 to 13, in another preliminary.

Will Makes Forced Landing in Snow Storm and Finds Committee Awaiting Him; Can Say "Lines" in Sleep

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers, and all the reading I been able to do is in the air "leeping" from town to town But we finally got back home to California We sure run into some tough weather on the way out. This Hawkes sure did defy the elements. We was a flying through the fog and rain coming from our last stand at Texarkana, Tex., all one morning. We finally worked our way out to the edge of New Mexico and then we got out of the rain and hit a real blizzard, a snow storm Well Sir that Bird started circling and messing around in the air and I had no idea what he was doing, or trying to do I thought he is only trying to find the ground But do you know he come down, and made a quick side slip landing I just thought it was a forced landing on the Prairie, but then I saw it was a little marked off emergency field, he had found it by instruments, not by sight. It was the last one on the way across the mountains till we reached Alberquraue, over a hundred miles away.

Now get this. Here was an emergency landing in a storm where you couldent see ten yards, and we hadent got out of the Plane and quit stamping around trying to keep warm, till a Committee of the town was there to ask us to come that night to a Banquet. We had had three solid weeks of Committees, and was flying away to escape em, and here was one away out on the Prairies in a snow storm Thats working pretty fast I want to see some Chamber of Commerce beat that. The School Teachers of Guadaloupe County were having a Banquet over at the Harvey House that night, so Frank Hawkes and I went over and did our usual little act

Sleep No Handicap

We had got so by this time we could do it in our sleep You could wake either of us up at any hour of the night and we would raise up. Frank would say, "I have been called a Speed Demon, I am not a Speed Demon, I think that Aviation has something to sell that no other line of transportation has, and that is speed, I mean speed within the confines of safety, the whole heavens above is open, and all we have to do is to use it. You cant get any worse hurt flying at two or three hundred miles an hour than you can flying at ninety, so what we have to do is develop planes that will fly at what we now call a tremendous rate of speed. I see the day coming in the not far distant when you will leave New York at noon, fly across the country at the rate of a thousand miles an hour, and reach Los Angeles, at NOON. That sounds crazy, but its not, the sun travels at the rate of one thousand miles an hour, well if the Plane travels that fast you are keeping up with the sun, so you leave at noon, and as there is three hours difference in time, it takes you three hours to make it, so you can get there when the sun does, so you leave at noon and arrive at noon. Of course when we fly two thousand miles an hour, you will leave New York at noon, and will fly out and arrive back at noon, in other words you havent been gone at all, and that reminds me of the time I took up a Negro Boy. Will always wants me to tell some jokes too, he has advised me not to get too technical. So I will tell you about the Negro Boy."

Glad All Around

So we had this stuff down so pat that we could do it anywhere, or anytime Frank has a Dandy appearance on the stage, and they like to hear him tell of his trips. Well in case I am called at any hour of the night, I simply roll over on my pillow and start in as follows, "Well folks sure glad to be here with you glad you are starving, otherwise I would never have met you. You have not got nothing on the rest of the Country We are all starving We havent had a regular meal since the Democrats were in, and if we wait for em to get in again we may never get another one. The Republicans promised us prosperity and we like a half wit believed em. But the joke is on them they aint eating so regular themselves. Starving aint so bad, its getting used to it that is thugh The first three years of a Republican Administration is the hardest. By the end of that time your are used to living on predictions. It seems good to get back in the old South again, for this is about the only old South we got Prohibition split us in two politically, and the drouth cut the two halves up into quarters, and the Quarters are divided over the Tarriff, so that only leaves one eighth of the Party intact, and the Wicker-ham Report killed off those that could read, and the Hoover Democrats have committed suicide So the old South is solid in favor of anything that aint in effect now. This hunger is not local, its universal

"Senator are drinking corn when two years ago they would have turned up their nose at less than Bourbon Lobbyists are working on Commission and starving to death. Wall Street Brokers have let their night Chouffers go, Rockefeller Sr. is only playing seven holes. The Rapidan dryed up, and the President is using the soles in the Potomac Coolidge hasent had a new ribbon on his typewriter since Northampton raised its tax rate Borah hasent issued an ultimatum since Idaho silver mines closed for lack of Gold. I am telling you times are tough. When Charley Schwab cant think of an Alabi its H - - -"

BEARS ATTACK STOCK MARKET

Issues Under Pressure for Second Successive Day on Big Board.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—The stock market was again subject to selling pressure in the early trading today.

The wishy-washy character of yesterday's market appeared to have prompted extensive week-end profit taking and bear selling. Rails in particular were under pressure The net operating income as reported for the first 50 roads for January, showing a decline from last year of 37 per cent, was interpreted bearishly. New York Central lost 3½ points, and Union Pacific, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, and Chesapeake Corp. declined 1 to 2 points.

The principal industrials mostly moved over a narrow trading area, and maintained a steady tone A few industrials and utilities a point or two however, including Allied Chemical, American Can, Eastman Sears Roebuck Fox, North American, Kroger, Public Service of N J., and International match.

Auburn recorded a temporary gain of 2 and Worthington recovered an initial loss of 2 Such issues as U. S. Steel and General Electric were virtually unchanged during the first half hour

Sterling cables were steady at 4 85 13-16.

GRAIN PRICES SHOW DECLINE

Wheat Hits Downgrade Under Influence of Increased Rain and Snow.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb 28—Grain prices underwent material downturns early today influenced by snowfalls and rains in domestic wheat territory and by unexpected relative weakness of Liverpool quotations Stop loss selling of wheat developed and the Chicago market soon dropped to about 7 cents below last week's top level

Opening 1¾ cents off to ¼ advance wheat later continued downgrade Corn started at ¼@⅝ decline and subsequently showed additional sag

More than a foot of snow in parts of Kansas had an especially bearish effect on wheat as indicative of an improved outlook for the 1931 domestic crop Bears made much also of assertions that aside from the 35,000,000 bushels which the Grain Stabilization Corporation proposed to sell abroad during the next four months, there was altogether too much domestic wheat on hand for home use.

Corn selling induced by breaks in wheat and by large arrivals in Chicago carried corn down to a new low-price record for the season Chicago's receipts totaled 208 cars, against 133 a week ago and 132 at this time last year Oats sympathized with corn and wheat the congressional mind that failure to vote the right way would cost votes. So the congressmen voted the right way.

Packers buying gave firmness to provisions despite lower quotations on hogs

Some day, perhaps, 25,000,000 Americans that own automobiles will unite to protect their interests, including the desirability of exemption from erratic and excessive taxation

NOW THAT THE BONUS bill becomes law, the government will pay out about $460,000,000 and there is talk about "draining the treasury, increasing taxes, injuring business." None of that need happen. The government can sell 3 per cent bonds to run 40 or 50 years at a premium, which would be more sensible than trying to pay them off at once.

It would be interesting to follow the first four hundred millions thus paid out. Among the many service men, one here and there will build on the money that he receives future independence. A majority unfortunately will spend the money and be no better off.

Needless to say, President Hoover's veto of the bonus bill required political courage, or rather the courage to put conviction ahead of expediency.

The President's veto expresses the fear that the bill would "tend to break down national self-reliance."

But during the war many money-making concerns, including one city railroad system, managed to get millions from the government, and that did not seem to break down their "self-reliance."

Average Face Value of Certificates Held Here Is $1,000, Geran Estimates.

terest, however, is paid yearly, borrowers would receive the face value, less the actual amount of the loan, when certificates mature in 1945.

Here's what a veteran has to do to borrow half the face value of his adjusted compensation certificate: if he has already obtained a loan he may present in person or mail to one of the regional offices the record of it and the application for more. Those who have not received loans must mail to the office or present a certificate note to that effect along with discharge papers and the certificate.

Immediately after the veto was overridden yesterday, the veterans bureau put its forces at work paying out money. One check to a veteran was in the mail five minutes after the Senate had completed its vote, and within an hour 400 more were out and the total reached a thousand by nightfall, the Associated Press reports.

Marion county veterans, however, probably will be caught in the rush at the Cleveland office and probably will not receive their loans for several weeks and possibly 30 days, Geran said.

Offices in Action

The 54 regional offices were notified to go into action yesterday and $17,750,000 of funds on hand was dispatched to them to meet the checks.

President Hoover announced everything would be done to facilitate carrying out the law now it was in effect, notwithstanding his objections to it. He requested Administrator Hines to give veterans in need priority

Hines took to the radio last night to call upon veterans throughout the country to let those most in need submit their applications first He urged them also not to borrow unless necessary, pointing out the loans cut into the certificates' value as paid-up endowment policies.

The new statute involves a potential outlay of about $1,700,000,000. If only the needy, as their number is estimated on the basis of a survey in the larger cities, were to borrow, President Hoover said the drain on the treasury might be limited to 10 per cent of the total, or $170,000,000.

Under the system effected at President Hoover's request, veterans showing certification of their need from veterans organizations and the various relief organizations dealing with unemployment, will get first attention.

"The recent survey of the larger cities show, in the opinion of the administrator of veterans' affairs," said Mr. Hoover, "That about six per cent of the total number of veterans in industrial centers are now receiving support from the local unemployment and other relief committees"

The veterans' bureau hoped to maintain its present rate of making loans within 10 days of the time the application is received. Only the certificates which have been in force two years or more may be borrowed on.

FREED OF CHARGE

New York Indian-Woman Acquitted of Murder in Third Trial.

By The Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 28—Lila Jimerson, Cayuga Indian woman twice tried for the murder of Clotilde Marchand last March was acquitted today by a supreme court jury.

The state contended throughout the trial, at which Supreme Court Justice Alonzo G. Hinkley presided, that the woman once known as "Red Lilac" of the Cayuga Indians had instigated the murder of Mrs. Clotilde Marchand so that she might be more free to carry on her admitted intimacy with Henri Marchand, artist and husband of the murdered woman.

The defense introduced testimony to prove that Lila had no knowledge of the crime either before or after its commission and that others had motives at least equally strong for desiring the death of Mrs. Marchand

CITES ATTEMPTS TO FORESTALL FAILURE

Daugherty Testifies of Efforts To Raise Funds To Prevent Bank Closing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, C. H., O., Feb. 28—Mal S. Daugherty, former president of the defunct Ohio State bank who is being tried for alleged abstraction of funds of the institution, testified today of the fruitless efforts he made in September, 1929, to raise sufficient money to keep the bank from closing.

Daugherty told the jury that he appealed to a number of state officials, including Myers Y. Cooper, State Superintendent of Banks O. C. Gray and Director of Commerce Edward Schorr, in his efforts to raise $100,000. This sum, he said, would have kept the bank in operating condition. On May 11, 1930, the day before the bank closed, he said he came to Columbus and held a nine-hour conference with Gray. Among those to whom he appealed were Governor Cooper, who they thought might interest some Cincinnati parties, J. S. Huntington, Columbus banker, and Schorr

These efforts failed, Daugherty testified, and he wanted to close the bank at once. The institution was closed shortly thereafter. The defendant said that his brother, Harry M. Daugherty, on two occasions loaned him $90,000 to bolster the resources of the bank.

Daugherty's direct examination was concluded shortly after court opened this morning, and he was turned over to the defense for cross questioning.

On cross examination by Special Prosecutor L. J. Schneider the state attempted to show that the Ohio State bank, organized in April 1928, from the Midland, Commercial and Fayette banks, was actually insolvent from its inception and that its undivided profits, as shown in the books, were overdrawn $12,403. Daughterty was President of the Midland bank

Daugherty testified the books did not reflect the true condition of the undivided profits. He added that accumulated interest, uncollected at the time, would have more than covered the apparent deficit. He denied any knowledge that the records of the Ohio State bank showed any impairment of its capital the day it was opened.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, March 1

SUNDAYS HOROSCOPE may not be considered entirely propitious one. It shows turmoil, confusion, and probably contention and strife in personal relations as well as in employment. The disposition may be irritable and the tongue sharp and sarcastic. Private affairs and pleasures may not prove happy.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which their own tendency to irritability, strife and rash judgments may complicate and confuse the affairs, private as well as business. Refrain from sharp and sarcastic speech, impetuous acts and wrangling in employment and matters may mend, especially new undertakings. A child born on this day may need good training and discipline in early life to inculcate calm and mannerly behavior, kindly and temperate speech, lest it provoke opposition and ill success in life.

For Monday, March 2

MONDAYS ASTROLOGICAL chart holds splendid promise of unexpected and material success, with many ambitions fulfilled and high goals of power and prestige attained. Protection, financial increase, desirable change of environment and opportunity are assured and should be reached for with adventurous spirit and aggression as all interests are enhanced by the excellent prospects and openings.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of signal success with forecast of advancement, honors, favors from those in high places, desired change and every opportunity for working to high goals of achievement. A child born in this day should be splendidly equipped for reaching places of position power and independence in life through its own talents as well as its originality and skill.

Minister and His Duty

A SERMONETTE
BY REV. LEROY DEININGER
Pastor Grace Evangelical Church

Text, Matt. 14:14—And Jesus saw a great multitude and was moved with compassion toward them.

IN these days of business depression, the query is often made, "What are the ministers and churches doing about unemployment?" Through the courtesy of The Star, I take this opportunity to state what attitude at least one minister is taking

If he is good for anything at all, a Christian minister imitates his Master in taking the attitude of sympathy toward all who are in distress, unemployed or those in any other difficulty will get a sympathetic hearing and good counsel from any minister they consult. Deserving folks will be quickly put in touch with those who can render any necessary assistance A minister invites interviews on any and all problems The average minister knows all about the problem of insufficient income and many in these days have little or no employment and have felt the pinch of want

A Christian minister can introduce you to his Master Jesus, who can be of untold help to anyone in distress Ministers are convinced that many of our problems will be solved if men find this Saviour besides whom there is none other whereby they may be saved. His word, "Without Me, ye can do nothing" refers not only to individual problems but to the problems of society as well. "Out of the heart are the issues of life." It will help tremendously if capitalist and worker alike sit at the feet of Jesus and try to adjust their difficulties by the adoption of His principles

It may be news to some that many ministers are among those who are insisting that a scientific study of the problems of industry, distribution, unemployment, etc must be made They are leading in the demand for industrial justice They are sure we cannot call ourselves Christians until Christian principles obtain in social and economic life

Workers who do not feel that ministers are alive on these problems should read religious magazines. On the other hand, ministers are sure that "direct action" methods are wrong They are sure we will solve our difficulties through attaining the spirit of Christ in the inner life and a study of situations in His sympathetic attitude. A Christian social order will bring justice to all classes.

You may be sure that Christian ministers are praying and working for the day when God's will is done on earth as it is done in Heaven.

The manufacturers of eight popular makes of cars, the prices of which range from $2,000 to $4,200, report that their February sales show advances, in many cases marked, over their February sales of last year. Naturally. We may cut out the luxuries, but the necessities must be had.

The Country Feels Relief.

Washington dispatches told us yesterday that the threat of an extra session of congress had been dissipated through the influence of the President, who at a White House breakfast to the conferees on the naval appropriation bill urged a settlement of their differences, which developed early in the week and offered little hope of solution.

The chief bar to agreement was the matter of the distribution of new naval construction between government and private shipyards. The house conferees receded from the position previously maintained by them and agreed that the work should go to government shipyards whenever feasible, which proved satisfactory to the senate conferees, and agreement was announced, which marked the clearing of the way for the last of the supply measures.

The word, threat, in connection with an extra session of congress, was intentionally used in the first paragraph of this writing. Without going into the question regarding the foundation, or lack of foundation, for the very general dread throughout the country of an extra session, it may be said that that dread obtains, and the psychological effect of it, assuming that it may be without justification, is fully as harmful as it possibly could be were there undisputed ground for it. Without attempting to compare the present congress with any of its predecessors during the last decade, other than to say that it manifested a greater tendency to oppose administration policies than any congress during that period, it may be said to have aroused a marked desire throughout the country for freedom from legislative activities, the more marked perhaps because of the prevailing belief that its activities, including the bickerings between the two houses and its opposition to executive policies, have retarded the return to normal business and industrial recovery and thus served to prolong an abnormal condition of unemployment.

Rightly or wrongly, this feeling exists, and the announcement that the threat of an extra session no longer obtains must have made pleasing reading throughout the country and cause a feeling of relief.

Passed Over President's Veto.

As forecasted at the time of its passage by congress and even before, President Hoover Thursday afternoon vetoed the World war veterans' loan bill, and it was repassed over his veto by the house and senate in quick succession, the house having acted that afternoon and the senate Friday. The votes by which the bill was enacted into law were overwhelming. The house supported it 328 to seventy-nine, and the senate seventy-six to seventeen.

Under the provisions of the measure, the veterans may borrow on their adjusted compensation certificates up to fifty per cent. of the face value of such certificates instead of 22½ per cent. as formerly. As the outstanding certificates have a face value of $3,423,000,000, the potential demand to be met by the government is $1,711,500,000, less $325,000,000 which has already been borrowed, or $1,386,500,000. The bill provides that the loans are to be financed by the $772,000,000 in the sinking fund for the retirement of the certificates and from the $50,000,000 in the government life insurance fund. If there is a 100 per cent. demand for fifty per cent. loans, both these funds will be wiped out and the treasury will have to raise an additional fund of $564,500,000.

As President Hoover explained in his veto message, the government, to meet the estimated demand, must borrow the necessary fund through the sale of the reserve fund securities together with further issues of bonds or impose further taxation.

Setting out in his message that the sole appeal made for the reopening of the bonus act is the claim that the national treasury should provide funds to veterans in distress as the result of the drought and business depression, the President stated that inquiry indicates that the number of veterans in need of such relief is but a minor percentage of the whole.

In addition to the draft upon the treasury and the hardship worked on the wives and dependents of the veterans who will have used the value of their certificates and "thereby deprived them of necessary insurance, the President, holding that the need today is to lessen the burdens of taxation and unemployment, represented the tendency to open the federal treasury to a thousand purposes, possibly of admirable intent, but in which the proponents fail, or do not care, to see the beginnings which insidiously consume more and more of the savings and the labor of the people.

"In the aggregate, they threaten burdens beyond the ability of our country normally to pay; and, of far higher importance, each of them breaks the barriers of self-reliance and self-support in our people," the President added.

Reviewing the matter from the inception of the campaign to secure the cashing in full of the certificates at this time, two propositions must be admitted to obtrude.

One is that the campaign is not ended; that it will be resumed at some future time, very possibly with the view on the part of some considerable element of the veterans to the clearing of the way for pension legislation. That the effect of the enactment of the loan bill into law will have, good or bad, on a movement for such legislation is a problem.

The other is that the overwhelming votes given the bill in the two houses do not necessarily indicate that the members of those bodies were so greatly impressed by the need of the legislation enacted as they were by the view that the enactment of the measure was good politics. And what effect the action of the proponents of the measure will have on their political interests in the future is another problem.

Al Capone was convicted of contempt in a federal court up in Chicago, Friday, and sentenced to six months' confinement in the Cook county jail, but the country's biggest industry will probably carry on just the same. Certainly Mr. Capone should be able to manage it just as well when in jail as when on his estate in Florida.

The directors of the plumbing and heating industries of Chicago have decided that their workmen should wear white trousers when at work on a job. That directorate must be interlocked with that of the laundry interests.

The Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals warns wet Democrats that their party will suffer a worse defeat next year than it did in 1928 if it comes out for wetness. It doesn't seem possible.

Contrary to predictions, Senator Norris, of Nebraska, still refuses to accept the Longworth amendment to the Gifford-Norris amendment proposal providing for the mandatory ending of short sessions on May 4. Come to think of it, what possible basis could there have been for the hope that a radical ever would agree to limit opportunity for the pestering of the country, even though the price of his refusal were "lame duck" sessions at which the radicals so stoutly rail?

The Passing of The World.

The announcement of the passing of the New York World to the Scripps-Howard interests is not without its element of sadness, as it marked the shattering of the dream of the late Joseph Pulitzer, who developed it into one of the notable newspapers of the land, that it would carry on as a family institution.

Chairman Roy W. Howard, of the Scripps-Howard board of directors, spoke of the sale as not marking the death of the World, but rather of its rebirth, and the future will probably justify his contention. The late Joseph Pulitzer was a great publisher despite the physical handicap from which he suffered, and when he died a vital force was lost to the really great newspaper property he had developed, a force which the new owners will supply.

The passing of the ownership of the World from the Pulitzer family and its merger with the Telegram under the name of the World-Telegram, the Morning World and the Sunday World having been abandoned by the new owners, once again illustrates the uncertainty of the future. Perhaps it may be just as well for the peace and happiness of us in life that we do not know what the future has in store for the worldly enterprises to the development of which we give our study, and thought, and effort unstintingly.

Editorial Opinion.

LAW AS A CLOAK FOR CRIME.

An inquiry is in progress in New York City into the matter of police and magisterial grafting. Much evidence has been adduced to show that official blackmail has been practiced upon offenders against the laws, some who were not precisely offenders, but who might have been but for police promptness, and even some who were not offenders at all but were just out of luck. In the course of the investigation positive proof has been given that certain policemen, mere patrolmen and slightly higher ranked members of the force, have for some time past been depositing large sums of money in bank, under their own names and those of members of their families, and have afterward withdrawn considerable portions of these deposits. So out of proportion to the legitimate resources of these men have been the deposits and withdrawals that the assumption has been logical that the funds have come from an illicit source, and also that they have, in part, later gone to the traditional "higher-up" personages of police department and others in the circle of municipal managers and manipulators.

The referee in this inquiry has sought by subpoena to obtain records of deposits and withdrawals from others than the minor officers. The purpose is clear, to find out who has been getting these funds. But immediately an effort is made to blockade the research. An attorney, acting for one of the policemen involved, who has refused to testify on "constitutional grounds," has interposed a plea for an order restraining the referee from seeking the financial records of the fifty-one higher-ups of the police department. His move is explained on the following grounds:

"Referee Seabury is empowered to investigate the magistrates' courts and to investigate policemen only in so far as they are connected with the courts. When he has specific evidence that indicates there is an unlawful connection between certain police officers, then, and only then, he is empowered to subpoena that officer's accounts. However, Referee Seabury has been working the other way. Without evidence, save suspicion, he has subpoenaed the accounts of a large group of officers and is endeavoring to find evidence of corruption in the magistrates' courts through an examination of their accounts. He has not laid a proper legal basis for this. He is merely on a fishing expedition. The law provides that before the personal business and affairs of a citizen can be publicly pried into there must be evidence that he has violated the law. Suspicions is not legal evidence."

Technically this may be correct. There are, however, other considerations than the technical limitations of the law to warrant a "fishing expedition,' when evidence glaringly presents itself that there is corruption. Common sense says that these police officers have not been banking legitimate funds. Common sense declares that they have not been collecting graft money for themselves alone. Common sense holds that there are higher-ups who are splitting the fees and dividing the blackmail. Common sense maintains that it is justifiable to use any means, even if technical limitations prohibit, to find out who has been getting that graft.

One of the gravest evils of municipal corruption is the abuse of the technical law for the covering of the guilty. Graft has flourished in New York and elsewhere in this country under the cloak of the law. When exposure comes the law which has been outraged in a long series of blood-sucking outrages upon the people should not be invoked to stop the probe and prevent punishment.—Washington Star.

The Value of Sunlight.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In ancient civilization people worshiped the sun. The sun to them was symbolic of God, who could cure their ailments and prevent disasters.

Nowadays we of the medical profession have almost reverted to this ancient homage. We have become almost fanatical in our belief in the value of sunlight in the treatment of various diseases.

To assume that many diseased persons can be cured by the rays of the sun alone is absurd. But no doubt remains in the minds of most scientists that the rays of the sun play an important part in the prevention of some diseases. Also it aids greatly in the care of other ailments.

Children who have been suffering from troubles due to disturbances in nutrition, like scurvy and rickets, rapidly get better when exposed to the rays of the sun. If we had a way to get sunlight into the slums of the world what a blessing it would be!

In Switzerland, children with tuberculosis are allowed to play about in the sun constantly, wearing little or no clothes. This procedure is continued through the winter months in spite of snow and coldness.

After the World war I saw hundreds of children on the hospital roofs in Vienna, taking the sunshine treatment. Recently, this method has been adopted in this country. Many state sanatoriums are following the same procedure.

Undoubtedly, the rays of the sun possess certain factors essential to good health. Children and adults who are exposed to the rays of the sun rarely contract certain diseases. They seem to possess a quality of health that is not seen in individuals whose share of sunlight is scanty.

However, it must not be assumed that plenty of sunlight alone will guarantee good health. Adequate food and rest are indispensable. The sun merely plays its part in maintaining the good health.

The actual curative value of the sun upon the body is best accomplished when we wear practically no clothes. Of course, this practice is rarely followed except during the summer months. Even then, I warn you, it should be begun gradually. Many persons do more harm than good by too quickly exposing themselves to the rays of the sun. Severe and painful burns may be received by too long exposure, until the skin has become accustomed to the sunlight.

Most people neglect the opportunities of taking the sun in the winter. They bundle up and remain indoors. This is a sad mistake. We should attempt to benefit by the rays of the sun all during the year. It is true that the heat of the sun is not as intense during the winter months, but the benefits of its rays are there just the same.

Fresh air, bright skies above and soft soil beneath our feet, are relaxing and health-giving, useful beyond what almost any other medication can accomplish. With the sun baking our body, we have a sense of relaxation that almost makes us purr with content.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

A. T. Q—Is there any way to correct an overactive thyroid gland besides the iodine treatment? I have been told that an operation is not always a positive cure.

A—A thyroid disturbance demands specific medical attention—the treatment depends upon the type and extent of the trouble. See a specialist for his opinion and advice.

M. C. K. Q—What do you advise for hives?

A—Careful attention to the diet and elimination should bring about results.

H. E. C. Q—What can I use to brighten the skin—have had a severe case of eczema which has left the skin discolored and dark?

A—Equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide will act as a skin bleach but since the preparation is apt to prove drying it would be wise to use a good, cold cream after each application. Keeping the bowels open and the system clear should also be helpful.

W. U. Q—What can be done for perspiration under the arms and what is the cause?

A—Application of hot-water compresses used for about half an hour daily should help to check the perspiration. Where the trouble is excessive it is usually due to some nerve condition. See your doctor if you perspire unduly. A normal amount of perspiration is healthful and beneficial to the body in general.

B. I. Q—Is there a way to cure bunions?

A—Yes. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it can not be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally, if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Molecule Holds Secrets.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Mars lies somewhere between the atom and the star. Our natural powers of observation have to be magnified and sharpened a million fold, even a billion fold in some cases, that we may obtain the information we desire. The microscope searches out the secrets of the infinitesimal, the telescope and the spectroscope stretch out toward fathoming the secrets of the infinite. If we only knew exactly what was taking place inside the molecule, inside the atom even; if we could only determine what was occuring on Mars, or Pluto, or on the celestial bodies which constitute one of the vast island universes at the verge of outer space, we should have surprised some of the deeper problems and more baffling enigmas of the universe.

A famous East Indian scientist, Sir Chandrasekhar Venkataraman Raman, has recently been awarded the Nobel prize in physics for 1930. The chief scientific discovery for which the prize was awarded is known as the Raman effect. Light scattered by a liquid or solid from a beam of light is observed through a prism spectroscope. Mercury arc light containing only single wave lengths was used. There are, of course, certain recognizable lines in the ordinary mercury spectrum. In the Raman scattered radiation obtained in the Raman spectrum, subsidiary frequencies are noted, and these are found to be due to vibrations of parts within the molecule.

During the past few years there has been a drift among the more advanced physicists against reliance upon physical models to represent molecular, intermolecular, and interatomic behavior.

The newer mathematical physicists prefer to rely upon mathematical equations which embody the laws of behavior, rather than upon pictorial representations or mechanical models purporting to exhibit that behavior.

However, models are never to be scorned, especially by teachers of science, who welcome all aids which have a useful pedagogical value. Recent inventions by Dr. C. F. Kettering, general director of General Motors research laboratories; L. W. Schutts of the same laboratories, and Professor D. H. Andrews of Johns Hopkins university exhibit in an impressive way the motions occurring in actual molecules, which are far too small to be seen.

We know, of course, that certain sorts of atomic vibrations are occurring inside molecules. It is conceivable that these atomic vibrations might be shown by mechanical models?

The question has now been happily answered in the affirmative. The new models have attracted the attention of physicists all over the world. The models are constructed of steel balls connected by spiral springs. The balls are of the same relative weights as the atoms they represent.

The web of balls and springs is freely suspented and connected to a vibrating rod whose speed can be varied by an electric motor. At definite frequencies of vibration, which are recorded on a counter, the model takes up a characteristic motion. Models of benzine, toluene, ethylene, acetylene and a number of other substances have been made. The rates at which the model resonates, for any particular substance, agree remarkably with the frequencies observed in light scattered by the substance.—Copyright, 1931, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A Piqua Incident of 1780.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

When, in the summer of 1780, George Rogers Clark marched with an army to subdue the Indians in the upper Miami valley, there was a denouement at the moment of his victory that must have taken the happiness out of the results for him. Some years prior to that the general's nephew had been taken captive by the Indians and never returned to his family. Rumors that he had decided to remain with the Indians and was acting with them in their forays against the white settlements in Kentucky had reached his relatives, but they were loath to believe them; and they had no idea where he was.

At the moment of some of the fiercest fighting at the Indian town of Piqua, a man was seen to leave the Indian town and run toward the foreward line of whites. Before reaching the line he was seen to fall, but managed to reach the defenses of Clark's army. It proved to be the missing nephew of General Clark. He lived but a few hours, and it was not clear whether he had been shot from the Indian side or that of the whites, but probably the latter, as it would naturally be supposed that he was an Indian and that he was leading a charge; that would draw the fire of the defense to concentration upon him.

This fight took place not far from the birthplace of Tecumseh, who is believed to have been at Piqua at the time of the destruction of the town by General Clark. He was a boy of twelve then, and it may be that his heart was fired by bitter animosity towards the white man. He never ceased to hate the Americans until he fell fighting them under General Harrison at the Thames in the War of 1812.

A Washington Daybook.

Washington, Feb. 28 — You're doub
familiar with the scene of two neighbors

One gets all "het up" and starts shou

You know—just a typical back

Well, the United States senate had a sa

"neighbors" were Heflin and Black of

The fuss was concerned with Heflin's d

He dresses the part. His cream-co black bow ties mark him as one of the ate's most colorful figures. He is among best speakers in that body, dauntless in

Black is almost the opposite. Of me

Native Scot Searches For Relative's Fortune

Probate court today was enlisted by a native of Scotland in his search for the will and death records of John Kane, a relative, who died in 1905, leaving an estate of approximately $50,000 in cash in addition to other property.

The relative, James Kane of Glasgow, Scotland, in a letter to court officials asked them to make a canvass of their records in an attempt to discover whether the man died in Marion county.

Conducts Search

In his quest for definite information as to the place of the man's death, Kane has written to court officials in every one of Indiana's 92 counties without success. He now is concentrating his search on Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky and Michigan, he said in his letter, which was addressed to "Chief Officer, Circuit Court, Marion County, Ohio, U. S. A."

Kane's only information to date is based on an advertisement which appeared in a Glasgow paper on April 5 1906, which read that "John Kane, late of Indiana, who went there over 50 years ago, has since died without issue and unmarried leaving a fortune of 9750 pounds, in addition to buildings and land, to his brother Dennis Kane, a shoredore, or if he is dead, to any male issue."

The 9750 pounds is about $45,000 in American money while the buildings and lands are believed to be equally as valuable.

Ad Is Mystery

Although Kane does not say in his letter how he is related to the man who died 26 years ago it is believed he is the son of Dennis Kane and therefore a nephew of the decedent. In this case, he would be an heir under the terms of the will.

Efforts to discover who placed the advertisement in the Glasgow paper evidently have failed for Kane. It is believed by court officials that the advertisement, printed a quarter of a century ago, has been brought to Kane's attention only a few years ago.

Meanwhile, probate court officials expect to conduct a search of their records in an effort to assist the man.

RADIO DEALER GETS CHECK FOR MACHINE

Cincinnati Man Sends Pay for Set Obtained in Confidence Game.

A check in payment for one of the two radios taken from Marion merchants last month by the operation of an alleged confidence game has been received by the Monarch Printing & Supply Co. The other set obtained from the Standard Home Utilities Co is being held as evidence in the trial of the persons said to be operators of the scheme.

The two sets were taken from Marion late in January after they had been installed in the temporary residence here of Byron Rose, 27, of Newstonville. Rose, who took the machines on approval vanished with them. No trace of the sets was learned until Rose was arrested at Washington C. H. and the operation of the ruse was exposed. Eighteen radio sets from various Ohio cities were obtained by Rose officials say.

Check for the $109 set taken from the Monarch Printing & Supply Co. was obtained from Max Franz, 22, proprietor of a Cincinnati music store through which the sets obtained by the ruse are alleged to have been sold. It is believed that the other set will be returned to the Standard Home Utilities after Rose's trial. The set was valued at $150.

Commodity Up a Cent After General Decline for Several Weeks.

A one-cent rally in egg prices which have been on a downward trend for several weeks, and the arrival of a small quantity of new produce featured this week's activity on the local retail market.

An increased demand for eggs, and higher quotations general throughout the state was responsible for the one-cent increase here, market observers say. Hatcheries have been taking a part of the supply, opening their buying season in the last few weeks.

Fresh carrots and beets in 10 cent bunches are among the new arrivals of the week. They come from Florida where the first of the spring crop is growing. The truck farm belt will move steadily northward with the climate, arriving here in three or four months.

A few boxes of Delicious apples at three pounds for 25 cents were shipped here from Washington state this week. Tennessee sweet potatoes were offered this week at three pounds for 25 cents.

Head lettuce and celery prices varied slightly during the week when heavy rains in California drove growers out of the fields for several days. With the wet condition of the fields making it impossible to pick the produce, the price went up because of the temporary shortage.

Just Things

Looking Forward

STORES are brimming with alluring gowns and milady is puzzling her bobbed, semi-bobbed or coiffured head as to just what the styles are going to do to her lines. There is food for thought in the old trunk in the attic providing you have as a "leftover," one of those contraptions known as a corset. Pause in a bridge hand and picture yourself in one, or better still, pick out some good sister whose sweet tooth gets the better of her waist line and visualize her in the throes of adjusting one of the con-arned things. Of course we can do it, we've done everything else, and the signs of the times inkle that the monsters lurk in the offing. The saleswoman very nonchalantly tells us they're boning them a little heavier this spring, and that's the one we buy. There are those who still remember the yards and yards of string it took to let 'em out and then the puzzle of tucking in the surplus either at the top or bottom. And among the things that one still blushes to recall is the sensation of realizing that the string had broken from its moorings and dangled unashamed below the hem of one's skirt and that awful, dull thud which accompanied that unmistakable gesture, letting the world know the strain was more than thread could bear. There was a case when your best friend didn't even have to tell you.

Debuts

An speaking of times and changes, the charming frocks worn by the singers in the Lecture-Recital club chorus recently recalled to one customer her debut as a vocalist. Just who the designer was, (if any) the customer doesn't remember but forget the costume, never. Cheesecloth was chosen for the material, because in the flicker of the footlamps it would be difficult to tell what make it was and the lines were of the mother Hubbard variety with a natural waistline. The circular pasteboard cover of a cracker barrel which was wheedled from the village storekeeper did service as a hat. It was covered with the same material as the gown and held in place, a la poke bonnet effect, with bow strings of the cheesecloth. Of course the dress had long sleeves and completing the costume were high lace shoes

THE CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

(Copyright, 1930, J. B. Lippincott Co.)

CHAPTER 28
Unmasked Murderers

THE song went on—the song in Duckworth's powerful voice—"Roses of memory, roses of September." Yet he was not in the room, nor was there any one playing. Richmond stood for a moment amazed as his eyes took in the scene.

In the drawer of Evelyn's desk there stood a graphophone, used while its owners were busy on their deeds of evil.

Mrs. Dalton, where is your husband?"

With a cry of terror, Evelyn shrank into the corner.

"Guard her, Richmond. I know where he is. I will fetch him."

He strode back into the darkness and re-traced his steps to the Dutch garden. He soon returned. With him came Donald Wade and between them they carried the limp, corded figure of the singer, Lionel Duckworth, or, as he was more correctly called, Lionel Dalton. During the few minutes of Jimmie's absence the bridge players, startled by the commotion, had deserted their game. They stood, an amazed group, while Richmond guarded the girl who had collapsed into a chair. The graphophone had ended its song and was scratching on unheeded.

Jimmie and Donald deposited their prisoner on the floor. Jimmie turned to the little company of friends.

"This is the man," he said, "who killed Miss Annabelle Querdling. He also poisoned Edward Green, putting by his side a confession to that first crime. Tonight he sought to take a third life so that the truth about the others should not be known. It might have been hard to prove his guilt, but I laid a trap, and he fell into it."

No one replied. The only human sound was a moan from the girl in the chair.

"In the Dutch garden you will find a dummy figure dressed in my clothes. This man pushed over the stone image on it, just as he did when Miss Querdling sat in the other seat."

"Two weddings have been announced tonight. Marjorie Blake married Captain Stirling, but her sister Evelyn married Lionel Duckworth three months ago. They told no one, but planned to kill Miss Querdling to get her wealth."

"Their method was simple. There are graphophone records of Duckworth's voice. They said they detested such machines, but had one nevertheless. They would enter the room and he would sing one song. Then, at its conclusion, the graphophone started another while he crept out to do his evil deed. Those outside would swear he was singing all the time. Behind that curtained doorway, his wife would await his return, the room door meanwhile being locked. To reach the Dutch garden, throw over the figure and come back was the work of a few minutes. Then at his return the graphophone would be hidden and his own voice would take up the song."

As he paused, there were moans from the two accused, but the others remained silent, dazed by what Jimmie was telling them.

He told of his proof that Green had been poisoned and related how he had informed Evelyn of this discovery, observing her alarms at his words. She had received the news of Green's death and was happy at the termination of her fears that he might recover, repudiate the confession and deny his suicide attempt, but Jimmie's disclosure stirred fresh fears, and when he led her to believe that he had told no one else her fatal plan was born.

"I said that I would sit in the Dutch garden tonight beneath that other stone figure and wait for Richmond. I knew she would tell her husband and figured that they would attempt to remove me. The party I suggested was to bring together those under suspicion. When Duckworth threw the figure on what he thought was my head we seized him. You know the rest."

But Richmond's curiosity was not satisfied, as Jimmie learned next morning when the superintendent called on him at the Wade home. "I'd like to know what first made you suspect Lionel and Evelyn, and how you guessed they had a graphophone."

"If Duckworth hangs," said Jimmie bringing out a small shining object from his pocket, "it will largely be because of this."

"A graphophone needle!" exclaimed Nancy.

"Yes. That first day in the young ladies' room I noticed this on the carpet and picked it up. Then I thought it strange that there was no graphophone in the house. When we heard the stories of those in the house I was struck by the general agreement that Lionel and Evelyn were busy in that room with their singing. I saw at once how a graphophone would answer all requirements of the case. Real singing at first, then a record turned on while the singer slipped out for a few moments. Then real singing again. I could see it was possible, but you cannot say more of it than that."

"I thought you were worrying about the car at the bottom of the garden," observed Donald.

"I was. While that factor remained unaccounted for, it was impossible to pin one's faith finally to any definite theory. Green, Graham, Netherton, Vincent, Marjorie—there was suspicion against each of them, but I was not satisfied with the case against any. I felt—we all felt—that Marjorie and Netherton were keeping something back, and while the mystery remained as to Stirling's car, doubt was inevitable. At the same time I kept my other theory in mind. I asked Duckworth what, as a singer, he thought of graphophones. He condemned them heartily, and Evelyn, with just a shade of excessive warmth, said she would never have one in the house."

"There wasn't one when we searched for the will," said Richmond. "If there had been I think I should have noticed it. I went through the contents of the desk."

"I agree there was no graphophone there at that time," said Jimmie. "Obviously they would not let it remain. As you saw, it was a very small, portable instrument—Duckworth's I suppose—and he brought it over when it was to be used. You will perhaps remember that Janet told us she listened with delight to the song 'To the Desert.' After that she heard a song she did not like so well, 'September Roses'."

"We ourselves heard Duckworth sing both of them," said Nancy.

"Heard him and saw him," agreed Jimmie. "I had the curiosity to aproach the graphophone people and I found out that Lionel Duckworth had done only one record for them. It was of 'To the Desert' and on the back was 'September Roses.'

"You will agree the discovery was significant. Duckworth could have committed the crime while a graphophone record was being played, and the songs that were heard while the crime was done were the only songs of his of which graphophone records existed. But it was not proof. Who had been in that empty car at the bottom of the garden? I had told Richmond that his theory was inconclusive while that doubt remained. Why, indeed, should not Duckworth sing his greatest successes?"

"You saw the truth, but couldn't believe it," remarked Donald.

"Yes. In a way that is so. Until yesterday my case was not complete. Even then it fell far short of absolute proof," he said, smiling at Richmond, "and you had already shown me you would take a lot of convincing. I was able to demonstrate that Green had never written that confession and had never attempted suicide."

"But that was a very different thing from showing who had killed him or Miss Querdling. Evelyn and Duckworth acted last evening exactly as I anticipated they would. It is entirely due to that that their guilt is so clearly established."

To Be Continued.

Of 184,668 grade pupils in Oklahoma public schools, 99.4 per cent were promoted last year.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations, the use of antiquated trusses, as they all set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime (no matter the size of the rupture), and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil.

The Spermatic Shield-Complex in combination with the Retainer-Simplex (Patent No. 747247 and other patents pending) — a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Infinitely superior to any instrument method or operation and producing results in no other way obtainable. All cases are secure a lifetime as against further trouble or expense. Large or difficult cases of incisional rupture (following operations) especially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions, with distinguished personal patrons of all nations.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

—BY JUDD M. LEWIS—

WHEN I woke up this morning it didn't look like there was going to be any lion growling around, and it was Saturday and everything felt all right and warm and hammy, but when I opened up the window to let Jubilee down by the rope in his teath there was such a thick fog that I couldn't see Farrell's house, and that is near enough for me to reach out and get my foot on it when I sneak out of the window when grapes are ripe or something, and I couldn't see the ground when I let Jubilee down and it felt kind of smothery like I was breathing cotton wool I never did see such thick air.

When I got downstairs I lit a light in the kitchen and when I opened the door to go out with the milk pail I could see my shadow against the fog, and at first I thought it was a man out there and that he was coming in the house, but I saw right away that it was my shadow. When I got the door shut I walked over to the middle of the yard and turned around fast a lot of times and then started out to see if I could find the barn, and then I bumped into the acting pole post. Then I started out again and I heard someone yoo-hoo and then I reached out and touched someone and it was Younise, and I asted her how she had found our house in such a fog and she said they had walked close to the fences, and then she said she was afrsid, and I told her I wouldn't let anything hurt her, and I put my arm around her, and just then Feebie yoo-hooed again, and Younise whispered not to tell her where we were.

I bet Younise likes to be afraid when I am around to protect her. But I had to go in and milk the dummed brutes, and then I went in the house to feed my face and the girls went in, and everyone was talking about the fog, and after breakfast the bunch played hide and seek in the fog a while and then we all started to go down to the lake to see how it looked and if any fish were losing their way and coming out in the fog, and all at once, as we got to the top of the cliff the wind came off the lake, and the fog turned into snow and it kept snowing and got so cold our teeth rattled. I must have been as cold as three little boys. We could see where we were going better in the snow, so we all legged it for home.

My mother had some hot bread in the oven and she broke up a loaf of it and spread it with butter whilst it was redhot and gave each of us a glass of milk and me and the girls stayed in with Annabelle Lee all day. Anyone would've thought my grandfather made the weather to see how proud of it he was. I went to Younisses and Maggie's and Feebie's to get their heavy coats, and now the wind is howling and the blinds are rattling and the lion is going up and down roaring. I don't like Mons this time of year.

Hibbing, Minn., amateur hockey team won two games from the University of Wisconsin, one from Minnesota and broke even with Marquette in two games.

MUSTEROLE

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Outlines an Idyllic Plan Whereby Madge Can Be the Perfect Wife and Mother.

LILLIAN looked at me curiously as I told her that I would adopt any plan she might suggest whereby I could follow my "career" and not neglect my husband and children.

"I had hoped for better things from you," she said. "Just what do you mean by 'neglect?'"

I knew Lillian's views from long association with her. She is a feminist, though not a rabid one, but I answered her stoutly nevertheless.

"Why not seeing to their comfort," I said "and not having time to visit with them whenever they want me."

She threw herself back in her chair until it creaked.

"I thought so," she said. "Translated into plain words it means being a valet for Dicky, a combination nursemaid and governess for Junior, and a dabbler in bottles and diapers for the baby."

"But all involving duties which have to be done," I pointed out.

"Not by a woman with your talent," she persisted. "Let a take 'em one by one. When Dicky made his daily visits to the hospital, did he have the wrong necktie, and were not his buttons all on?"

I laughed in spite of myself.

"He was absolutely impeccable," I said.

"And were Junior and Roderick run down at the heels or unwashed behind the ears when they came home, and had they acquired any new swear words other than those they deplorably hear from Dicky and Harry?"

"That's because you were on the job," I pointed out.

"No, it's because your training and Katherine's have borne fruit," she said triumphantly. "I didn't have a bit of trouble with them. But we're only skittering around the edges of this thing, when we ought to be getting down to the real nub of it. Here's my position—"

She stopped, drew a long breath, then went on, tapping the forefinger of one hand into the other to emphasize her points.

"The way things have gone from time immemorial," she said, "there's always some woman in every home who bears the brunt of everything, has the whole responsibility of the domestic cosmos on her shoulders. That's because every other member of the family is a shirker of sorts. They don't mean to be, nine-tenths of the time, it isn't their fault, they aren't trained to be self-reliant and it's usually because the mother of the family hugs her chains, or is too lazy mentally to train her family. But when the mother is removed by death or illness, or some other cause, you usually see a great light descend and the responsibility settles on all shoulders."

A Co-operative Institution

"It's all wrong," she said, and I knew by her tone that she was indeed seated firmly upon her "hobby horse" and riding it vigorously. "The family should be a cooperative institution with every member of it trained to stand on his or her own feet."

"Yes, milady Soviet?" I interrupted her, "but will you kindly explain just how I'm going to make over the family?"

"That's the easiest thing I know," she replied airily with a wave of the hand. "Have your father build you a bungalow back in the orchard, or on the top of the hill if you want to go farther away. It won't be an expensive proposition. There are stones and logs, too, on this end of the island and it won't be a Winter proposition; a fireplace will take care of you in the Autumn and Spring. Sam Tiger and Jerry with some men to help them will throw it together in no time. You'll only need one big room with most of it screened windows and a bath. Fix it up with your books and desk and typewriter and that miniature theater Phil gave you, and then—keep it absolutely sacrosanct. Nobody, not even your nearest and dearest, must ever go anywhere near that door, unless for the gravest emergency, or by your very express invitation, and those ought to be rare. In that way you can keep your working hours absolutely sacred and emerge only for meals if you wish, or have trays sent over. In Midwinter, in the city, I can recommend nothing better than a hotel suite, sittingroom, bedroom and bath with your name on a private register."

"It sounds attractive," I said wistfully, remembering the interruptions while I was working out the first two acts of my play and visualizing the idyllic working studio she had planned.

"But impractical. I suppose you're saying inside of you," she said with exasperation in her tone. What's wrong with the scheme? It simply would be release from petty details. You wouldn't be separated from your family. When you emerged from your work, you'd be a treat to your husband and son instead of a commonplace, and you'd be able to have a beautiful comradeship with them. You probably could plan your work so that you'd do it generally while Dicky was doing his and while Junior and Roderick were at school so that you'd have your leisure hours together. I imagine if Mother Graham and Katie were given regular doses of chloroform, they could be trained not to interrupt you every time the telephone rang or the bathtub overflowed."

But Lillian," I said, "you forget the baby."

"What's the matter with Katherine?" she demanded, "or," looking at me shrewdly, "are you, perchance afraid your small daughter may learn to love Katherine better than she does you?"
